대화를 듣고, 남자의 의견으로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

W: Dad, look at this banana.
M: Oh, my. It has turned brown.
W: Yes, I put it in the refrigerator yesterday to keep it fresh, and now it looks like this.
M: Bananas don't need to be kept there.
W: Really? Isn't it always better to store fruit in the refrigerator?
M: Not necessarily. Fruits should be stored differently depending on their type.
W: I didn't know that. I wonder why that is.
M: Tropical fruits like bananas get damaged by cold air, while strawberries should stay in the refrigerator so they won't get too soft.
W: I see! I need to learn how to store each fruit properly from now on.
M: Right. Make sure to store each type of fruit differently.
W: Okay. I'll bear that in mind.

W: Hello, viewers, and welcome to The Parent Bridge. Are you worried about your kids' lack of patience? I'm happy to share a surprising activity that can help your child, knitting! Having your child knit can help develop their patience. This is because every knitted item, like a scarf or a sweater, is made slowly with constant effort. Also, kids need to work patiently step by step to finish one piece because there's no quick way to finish it. Therefore, if you want to help your child build patience, encourage them to start knitting. Thanks for watching, and don't forget to subscribe.

다음을 듣고, 물음에 답하시오.

W: Hello, students. More and more people are raising pets these days. Today, we'll learn about the laws concerning pets across the world. First, in Switzerland, social animals can't live alone. If you keep guinea pigs, they need a companion of their own kind by law because the country treats loneliness in pets as a welfare issue. Second, in Japan, owners are legally required to have their cats microchipped. This helps to track missing cats and prevent them from being lost for good. Next, in Spain, it's now illegal to leave dogs tied up without watching them in public spaces. So leaving dogs tied up alone outside a store can result in fines. Lastly, in Germany, for pet birds, such as parrots, owners cannot keep their birds locked in a small cage all the time. The law states that birds must be given the opportunity for 'free flight' inside the home for enough time every day. Now, let's watch some related videos.
